

Monday, 17 July 2006

HP has announced that Redstone Technology is one of their Tenth Fastest Growing Preferred Partners in EMEA.

Redstone Technology (formerly Xpert Technology) was named as one of the top resellers of Hewlett Packard (HP) equipment and services in May. The award was made from a pool of European Middle Eastern and African (EMEA) resellers and was based on total business undertaken within the month. Redstone was given this accolade also based on its ability to sell across the entire HP portfolio.

Joe Brenkel, vice president, HP EMEA Solutions Partners Organisation, praised the Irish based company for its distinction on an international stage: "We are very happy to honour Redstone for its ongoing commitment and unquestionable value-add to its customers. This accolade is given to showcase Redstone's outstanding performance and the ongoing value it brings both HP and our joint customers."

As one of HP's foremost business and service partners Redstone offers its blue chip customer base an unrivalled pre- and post-sales services and consulting in the design, construction and support of the most complex IT environments.

Declan Van Esbeck, Redstone Technology MD stated: "This accolade is as an affirmation of Redstone's position as a leading provider of HP-based services in Ireland. Since our formation more than 20 years ago, we have consistently delivered high value services to our Irish customer base and have been synonymous with the HP brand."

Redstone Technology is one of Ireland's leading specialists in providing leading-edge Enterprise Storage Solutions and is a specialist in Business Critical Enterprise-class Servers. With unrivalled expertise in designing and implementing complex solutions we provide the very best array of Professional, Consulting, Logistics and Maintenance Services providing 32 county cover. The Company is part of Redstone plc. which has a turnover of in excess of £70 million and employs around 370 personnel at offices across the UK and Ireland.

Ends